ABAS MIDDLE-MAN

COMMISSIONER OF AGRICULTURE OPENS FIGHT ON HIGH COST OF LIVING.

Kentucky is First State of Union to Establish Free State Marketing Bureau.

Western Newspaper Union News Service.

Louisville, Ky.—Elimination of the "middle-man" between Kentucky farmers and consumers of farm products in the cities of the state with a view of reducing prices to the consumer and insuring larger profits for the producers is the end sought in the establishment of a state free marketing bureau in Louisville, by the state board of agriculture.

Announcement of this latest attack on the "high-cost-of-living" was made by Commissioner of Agriculture J. W. Newman, following a meeting of the Association of Commissioners of Agriculture of the Southern States at The Seelbach. The plan was broached by Mr. Newman at this session and endorsed by his colleagues.

The commissioners of agriculture of the South not only passed a resolution favoring the establishment of similar bureaus throughout the Southern States, affiliated with the organization, but conducted by the individual boards of agriculture, but also favored a bureau of the federal government co-operating with the state bureaus. Through this means it is expected to attack the problem of living from a new angle.

Commissioner Newman's suggestion came as a surprise to other members of the association at the convention, but they fell into immediate accord with his views.

Commissioner Newman told the commissioners he had worked out a plan for establishing a free state marketing bureau for Kentucky. Since no state had taken this step, and since what was done in Kentucky would either meet the approval of the public or its censure, he said he felt he would like to submit his entire plans to his fellow-commissioners before announcing it to the public.

The Sport of Auto Hunting At Night Popular.

Mr. Nim Buster, who lives near Burgin, is getting to be an expert in the new sport known as "shining." For the enlightenment of the uninitiated he will say that "shining" is hunting rabbits from an automobile at night. Mr. Buster killed about a dozen Bunnies in this way the other evening. This kind of hunting is getting quite popular in Mercer and Boyle, for the sportsman can take his best girl or his wife along. If you want to go shining get a reliable chauffeur and run the machine out any good country road some night and see how many rabbits will be scared out of fence corners. The bunny will become momentarily confused by the light and noise of the car, and there's your chance for a good shot, otherwise he will soon collect his wits and scamper away. It is rare sport and a most exciting way of hunting small game, as a large territory can be covered in a short while. Those who have indulged in the sport are most enthusiastic over it and some real experts are being developed among the local auto hunters.—Harrodsburg Herald.

More Turkeys in Madison Than Ever Known.

Madison county's crop of turkeys this season was quite a surprise, it being the largest in many years, and while for the Thanksgiving market the prices were high for good, fat stock, for some reason the farmer held on, even with the shipments very light. There were a great many turkeys that reached market in poor condition, owing to the prevailing warm weather at slaughter time, and prices realized were very low, so Kentucky packers have recorded another loss.

Present indications are that there will be a very heavy shipment made for Christmas and prices on foot will be much lower than at Thanksgiving. At many points the prices are now quoted at 11c to 13c, the highest yet offered for fat, selected stock; for poor, thin birds the prices range from 7c to 10c per pound.

ROAD OF COAL SLACK.

Greenville, Ky.—The good roads movement in Muhlenberg county continues to be the most absorbing topic of conversation. D. Ward King addressed the citizens of the county at the courthouse here Saturday, November 23, under the auspices of Muhlenberg fiscal court. The citizens of Greenville put the proposition to the citizens of Central City and the fiscal court to reconstruct a stretch of road seven miles in length from Greenville to Central City by having spread upon it a layer of coal slack twelve inches thick. Coal slack can be easily obtained from the mines scattered along the road, and the proposition has been accepted and work begun. It is thought that by this method this particular road will continue in good condition during the entire winter.

Gain in Rural School Enrollment.

Statistics compiled by E. R. Jones, of the department of education, for the report of the department for the school year of 1912-'13, shows that the rural school enrollment has increased 65,600 over last year, in face of the fact that the school census shows a decrease of 14,000 pupils. The total school census for the year 1912-'13, which includes city and rural pupils, is 745,000.

The average attendance of the rural schools has never equaled that of the average attendance of the city schools until the past year, and this is attributed to the establishment of the county high schools. The establishment of the county high schools has kept children of the school age enrolled, where heretofore only those attending the intermediate school were enrolled.
